Dear Sir.

Just a line to let you know that Uncle John, not very well and he is getting very feeble. I am sorry that you and Mrs. Steele were not able to get to see him while in Ottawa, as I am sure that he would have been very much pleased to have seen your both. He is not quite so bad to [illegible] things as he was some years back. And I hope that you will remember to write to him on his birthday as not anyone wrote him last year. And he talked about it for month that you all soon be rid of him. I myself would not be surprised to [find] him dead in bed any morning, and I hope that he will die in bed for I have always have been afraid that he will happen with accident. Both Uncle and I were pleased to hear Mrs. Steele recovered from her sever [sic] illness and able to get round again.

If Uncle knew that I was writing he would be sending his kind regards. Believe me.

Sincerely,

Maggie Currie
